Continuity and Flexibility in Managing Change: Fifty Years of American Historic Preservation

Event Sponsored by:

Mayor Michael Pantelides invites you to a free public lecture given by John H. Sprinkle, Jr. and Audrey T. Tepper from the National Park Service.

Guest Speaker: John H. Sprinkle, Jr., Ph.D., Bureau Historian, Park History Program
National Park Service

John Sprinkle serves as the agency's Bureau Historian. A Maryland native, Mr. Sprinkle joined the National Park Service in 1998 and served in the National Historic Landmark program where he oversaw the designation of 120 NHLs. He holds a doctorate in American history from the College of William and Mary and is an Adjunct Associate Professor in the historic preservation program at the University of Maryland, College Park. He is the author of Crafting Preservation Criteria: The National Register of Historic Places and American Historic Preservation.

Guest Speaker: Audrey T. Tepper – LEED Green Associate, Historical Architect, National Park Service

Audrey Tepper has been employed by NPS for 24 years and works in the Technical Preservation Services Branch on historic structures inside and outside of national parks. Her office wrote the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Historic Preservation, the guiding principles behind sensitive preservation practice in the US today. Ms. Tepper has extensive experience on how to interpret the Secretary's Standards, with special expertise in making historic buildings more sustainable and adapting them for climate change. Ms. Tepper earned a Bachelor of Fine Arts from Cornell University and a Masters of Architecture from the University of Virginia.

Continuity and Flexibility in Managing Change is one in a series of lectures scheduled for 2016 in celebration of Preservation50. This recognizes the 50th Anniversary of the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966, and is the reason we have a federally-certified historic preservation program in Annapolis.
